MIGRANTS CALL HER "MAMMA"

In every Australian city with a sizeable Italian population, there are radio programmes catering for migrants who haven't as yet learnt English and would feel lost without a word in their language and a little Italian music.

Lena Gustin (right) runs a number of sessions on 2CH, and advises migrants on their new country. Mrs. Gustin, who is also president of ANFE (Migrant Families Association) was knighted by the Italian government for her work in the social field. Her son and daughter study at Sydney University.
